February Wines: Avail for pick up Wednesday 4th

Chateau Ste.Michelle - Dr.Loosen "Erioca" Riesling 2007 ~ This latest rendition from

Chateau Ste. Michelle and Ernst Loosen is a remarkable wine of impeccable balance and stunning depth. Slightly sweet and buoyed by fine fruity acids, it smells of honeysuckle, white peaches and minerals and follows with long, compact, layered flavors that presently only hint at the richness to come.

Food suggestion: Try this the next time you are in the mood for spicy Asian foods.

Meandro do Vale Meão 2005 #64 Top 100

"Powerful aromas and flavours of cassis, mint, dark chocolate and spice are accented by an impressive minerality. Medium-grained tannins and plenty of structure back up the almost Port-like essence of this muscular red. Shows exotic Asian spice notes on the finish. Drink now through 2012.

Food suggestion: Have you tried to "cold smoke" a steak before? This wine has a great smoky note on the nose and palate, I tried mine with a smoked prime rib steak and it was awesome!!

The Whistler Tree

The World's oldest cork tree, planted in 1783, is harvested every 9 years and produces enough cork for 100,000 bottles of wine.

“The Delicate Dance”

I am so very lucky to have a Chef and team of culinary professionals that are so willing and open to exploring the world of wine and food. Many times each night, our Sommeliers will find themselves in a position where a particular table has ordered a bottle of wine that will perhaps over-power their food selection, or worse, be lost in the flavours of the dish. One way we sometimes take care of this problem is to offer the guest a small taste of a wine that may be better suited to their food, but what really makes me smile is the kitchen team’s understanding that the wine is set, though the food can be worked to match the wine. Not too many Chefs out there would even consider the thought of changing their plate to match the wine... many times in my career I have heard, “It’s your job to find a wine to suit my food”... Not at the Willow, it’s your experience that is the most important, and I feel very fortunate to have a team that understands that. It’s a delicate dance, and one I am happy to perform night in and night out because I have a great dance partner!

Cheers To Chef Moe and all the Crew, you make us smile!
